

The main aesthetic for my fanfic is mirroring. Each of the images is interchangeable.

"She laughed then a private laugh that included the guys but only the guys, and they laughed with her."

"Once, twelve years ago, we passed like strangers. A black girl and a white girl meeting in a Howard Johnson's on the road and having nothing to say."

Two little girls who knew what nobody else in the world knew- how not to ask questions. How to believe what had to be believed.

"I wouldn't forget a thing like that. Would I?"

"I wonder what made me think you were different."
"I wonder what made me think you were different."