Title ___ Kafka's Metas (not sure about the title)___

Voice over: There is a new virus outbreak in the world that changes the form of the infected person and makes him/her look like some type of bug. There is no cure to turn the infected back into the human form yet.

Gregor Samsa wakes up one day and finds himself turned into a giant insect.

After hiding in his room to avoid his family for a couple of hours, Gregor's father walks in his room to check up on him only to find a bug roll around on Gregor's floor.

The family finally realizes the situation and that their son is infected by the virus. Because there is no cure, Gregor's father suggests killing the bug; he does not see the bug as his own son anymore in this form.

Later they find out that there is a facility where all other virus cases are observed and studied by the experts. They decide to take Gregor to this facility where he will be quarantined with other insects.

Gregor comes back from the facility to their home as a more civilized bug although the experts never found a way to trait these insects and turn them back into their human forms.
